The work of our hands sets in motion new and ever-challenging worlds: worlds of the actual and of the imagination. On the drawing boards of experience we design the pattern of ideals which blueprint our actions. As we are fashioning our image to present to the outside world, we are also building the foundations of personality and character. When the basic form is shaped, the final molding will come as further experience—successes and failure—rounds out the individual. We will trace this process as the theme of the 1965 Odasagiah of Edgewater High School.

Learning to Create Beauty in a World of Form and Sound.

Creation is the mind's eye; it is how we see the world, the people and the things therein. Whether designing a future or fashioning a career our destination is one in which we hope to find and express a specific perfection in each of our daily experiences.

Betty Ann Root with precision stroke and timing, slices the water with perfected ease.

Larry Enlow, finishing one lap thrusts the baton out to Chris Conlon for a hopeful victory.

Kent Stuart, a profile of strength, heaves the shot-put for a distance of forty-eight feet.

Mr. Cargill, directs the Edgewater Chorale.

Steve Shoaf gazes into an ominous future.

Shape Their Aesthetic Appreciation

An individual's life acquires interesting and pleasing designs through his participation in many diverse areas of activity. In the variety of courses at Edgewater, students were offered a chance to develop complete personalities.

Eagles discovered various means of self-expression. Compositions of dulcet tones and creations of unique sketches stimulated the artistic senses. Through studies of fine and graphic arts, the students became increasingly more perceptive.

Eagles Create Novel Uses for Time

The hours after the 3:05 bell were an open challenge to Eagles' ingenuity. They uncovered or created novel ways to channel their enthusiasm usefully. The out-of-doors lured many of them to feel its freedom and rise to its challenge. Others relaxed in peaceful worlds of harmony or built models as expressions of their creativity.

The plaintive melodies of folk songs inspire Bill Parish to try banjo-plucking.

Achievement is the apex of one's life—his reward for diligent strivings. It begins with the breaking of the ground, just as we, also, begin with attempts, and often, failures. Next we must lay a foundation, often of our hopes and confidence and a distant view of our goal to come. Our mortar, being our chief ingredient, serves as a magnet to assemble our dreams and endeavors, into invaluable experience. These comprise our steps to building a most sturdy structure, just as we strive to accomplish our goals and to attain the utmost degree of achievement, not only in things of importance, but in all things.

Concern for other people shows itself in every word, every gesture, every smile, and every gift of time and energy through service. It shows when we take special care to please a date, and when a bright "good morning" answers the call; it is the spark of warmth in the willingness to offer help when needed.

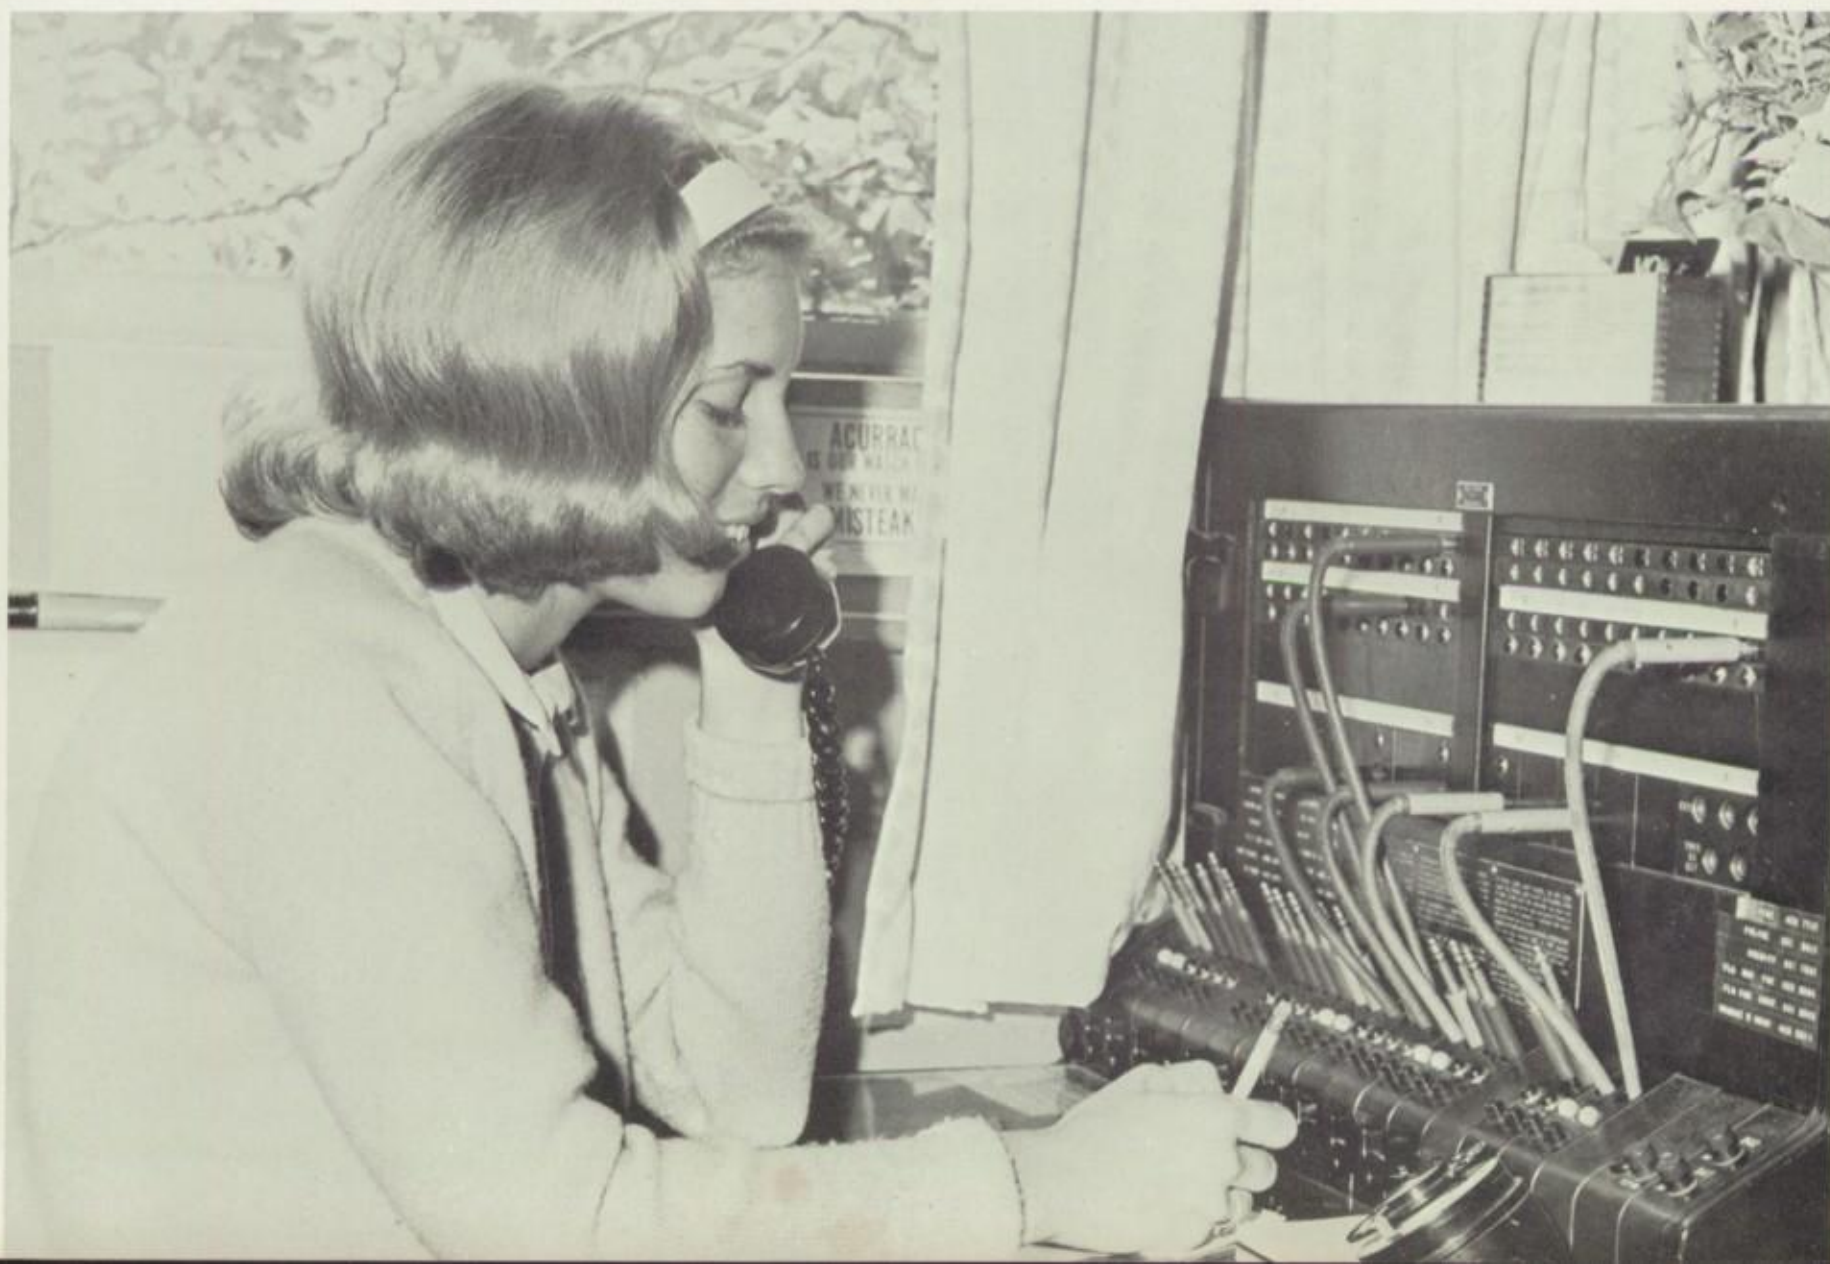

This is the concern which tempers all human relationships, refining friendship from acquaintance and love from indifference.

A last-minute check on his appearance reassures Gary Cantrell before he leaves for a very special date (left). As a volunteer for the hospital, Janet Hitchcock (below) gains the satisfaction of serving others.

There are times for everyone when help is greatly appreciated, and Andy Hutchinson finds Judy Blomquist an invaluable assistant when he is slightly disabled (above). "There's one over there," says Sharon Reynold's date after searching for seats in the crowded Eagle stands (right). A warm greeting is Mardi Gehrig's way of welcoming all incoming calls (below).

Beauty as we feel it is sometimes indescribable. The radiance of the Homecoming Queen and her court make the occasion and its tradition the high point of every student's school year. With the election of the queen by the Varsity football players comes the crowning, presentation of roses, and the cape. The annual Homecoming Dance sponsored by the Junior Class brings the evening to a close. However, one can only attain the splendor of loveliness from within. The 1965 queen embodied this loveliness.

Jo Ann Clay (below) artistically models a clay vase as the group (left) molds beach sand into a damp but decorative castle.

Hobbies and recreations round off our more defined activities. Nature's peace and the excitement of that long awaited phone call bond companionship firmly . . . friends build a sandy monument to their hours of fun . . . a hole-in-one makes "that game" immortal for them, if not the sports writers . . . the print develops to reproduce the event as it was . . . imagination and skill can transform a formless mass into art.

Each of these fleeting moments is part of the substance of youth. Such is the stuff memories are made of.

The freedom of the outdoors relaxes Sandra Rich and Charne Klotz. (Below) Lady Luck uses her magnetic charm to lure the ball, to the amazement of John Bazzo, Marilee Chamberlin, Cindy Clayton, and John Best.

ACADEMICS

To sculpture a living face, to transform a human image into the tangible object can be done only with the language of one's hands. Just as the sculptor molds the features in clay, so the teacher helps to mold the character of those students with whom he comes in contact. The height of excellence and character a person acquires in his lifetime is shaped, strengthened, and sculptured at the genesis of his life.

Edgewater High School's deans and advisors attempt to help students in every way possible.

Deans Berry and Ezzard are always available to counsel and to give all students information concerning tests and scholarships. The advisors help students principally with various academic problems. They try to guide students into programs that suit both the students' interests and abilities.

College center is under the supervision of the class advisors. Here many college catalogues are made available to students to secure information on colleges of specific interest to them. Thus, students have access to good counseling.

Principal Howard S. Fleming and Assistant Principal James H. Vickers pilot a smooth-running administration here at Edgewater High School. Though students realize the principals have vast responsibilities, most of them cannot begin to visualize how time-consuming the principals' jobs are. Both administrators are always busy helping students at school, talking with parents over the telephone, coordinating activities with the P.T.A., and lending support to the teams at athletic functions. Their participation proves they are true Eagles.

Mr. Fleming attended Pennsylvania State University where he received his B.S. degree. Later, while at the University of Florida he finished his M.E.D. degree. Mr. Vickers did undergraduate work at Florida Southern College and completed his M.E.D. degree at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

During his limited spare moments, Mr. Fleming enjoys all kinds of water sports, especially fishing. In his leisure time over the weekends, Mr. Vickers also finds pleasure and relaxation in fishing.

ADMINISTRATION

Challenges Edgewater Students with Fast-paced Activities

During the course of a busy day the office secretaries, Mrs. Bass and Miss Bailey, find time for a short visit to the faculty lounge to enjoy an ice-cold Coca-Cola and a brief chat together.

Handling the finances of Edgewater High School is the responsibility of Mrs. Carol Snipes. One big job of hers is the auditing of the books of all clubs.

Secretaries, Mrs. Frances Bass and Miss Marjorie Bailey have many duties to perform. Duties as registrar take much time from Mrs. Bass. As Mr. Fleming's personal secretary, she sets up his appointments and takes dictation for correspondence for all school work. Miss Bailey greets all visitors with a smile and takes care of their needs and requests.

ENGLISH

Department strives to develop the skills of grammar and composition; offers special courses for aspiring Eagles

Because our language has such a bearing on our lives, English has become the most important subject. For the rest of his life, the student of English is dependent on his high school study of the language for his communication with others.

Realizing this, our English department, under Mrs. Mary Wilson, endeavored to create a program of studies which would correlate both with the academic and social needs for a language. Anxious to meet the requirements of our students, the department created new subjects to fulfill specialized demands.

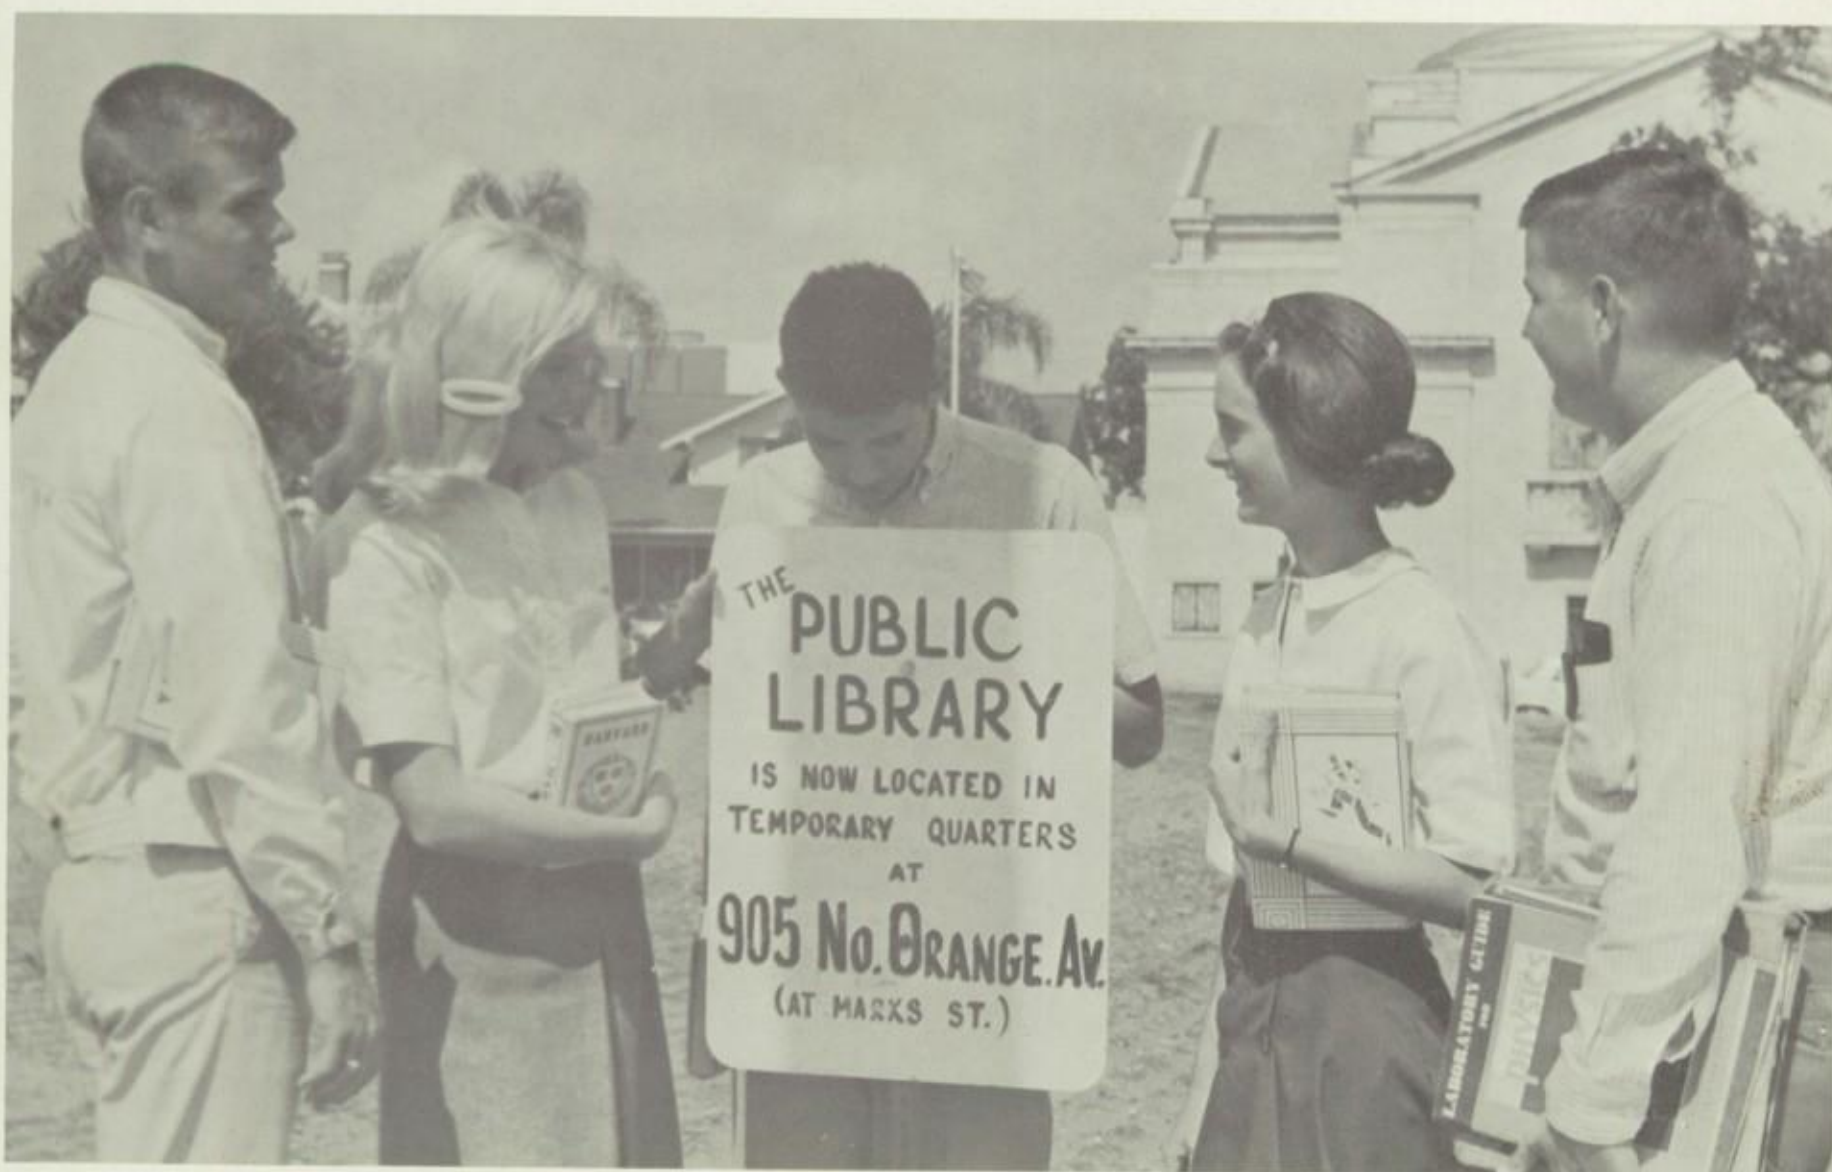

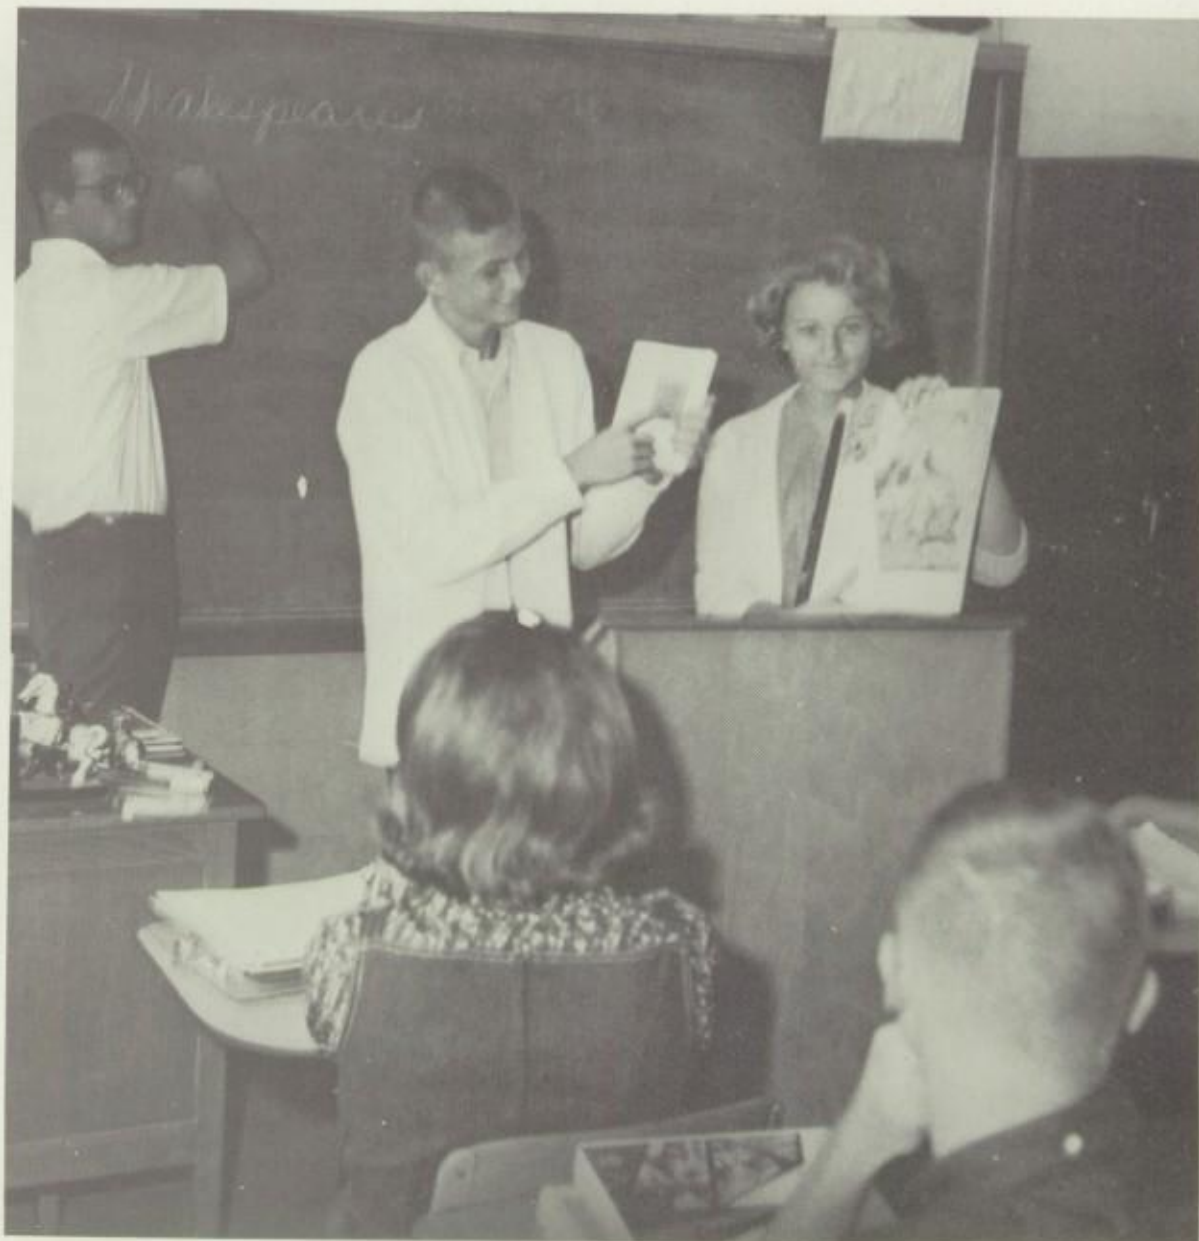

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors all had respective areas of study. Students progressed from the structural base of the language upward through the outstanding literature of both Americans and Englishmen. All the composition skills acquired by the twelfth grade were applied to the traditional senior themes.

Those English students desiring advanced knowledge in certain areas of study could examine forensics, drama, or journalism to accomplish their needs. Thus, a complete spectrum of English studies was ready to be used by all.

Here as Mr. Watts supervises, Russian students exercise one of our newest media of learning, language labs, at Edgewater.

LANGUAGES—Key In World Today; Realm of Russian available to students of Edgewater; Language labs benefit by new approach to languages.

Ola! Guten tag! Continental greetings rang within our halls, as language students talked about culture studies in French, Spanish, Latin, German, and Russian, all of which, are foremost subjects here.

Spanish and French, two continental languages, have become extremely popular. Not only did they offer travel benefits, but were also very important to the future of America. Knowledge of the beliefs and customs of Spanish and French countries as well as their language promoted American good will.

Latin has always been of value to its students; for it has furthered their knowledge and use of our own English language. Such activities as Latin projects, special reports, and daily discussions in the class, have advanced our knowledge of the ancient Romans, including Caesar, and also Virgil, to name only two.

German was a course of increasing popularity. German Club and German reports, have stimulated students this year. The culture and customs of the Germans proved educational and interesting.

Russian, our newest and perhaps, most exciting language, was offered for the first time here at Edgewater. A study of the Russian language, land, and people, have increased our knowledge of that region of the world in our present times.

So, as the French and Latins say, "Au revoir" and "Valo"!

German students, Audrey Wilson, Chuck Shaver, and our exchange student, Gus Ramos, along with Herr Reininghaus, discuss a leading German newspaper, used in their study of the ways and culture of the German civilization; this area is one of the year's studies in German.

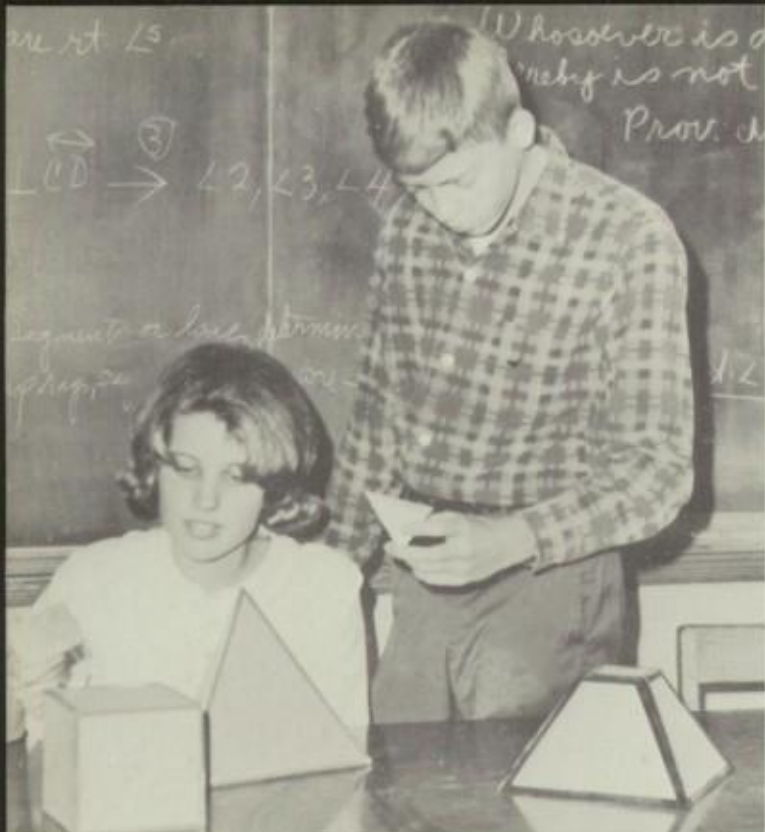

Melissa Williams and Jay Fowler locate interesting places in their study of French.

"Culture Day" is an interesting activity, seen in Mrs. Cooper's Spanish Class where John Dickenson, Sharon Vaughn, Susan Wiseman, Richard Jane portray Spanish market scene.

Mrs. Crow's Latin Classes experience the fun and education of their own high school "College Bowl"; here, Bryan Kincaid reads aloud one of the questions as students Brian Weaver, Audrey Wilson, Robbie Shinske and Joe Schmidt, calculate answer in a competitive spirit.

MATHEMATICS

$E = MC^2$ Recognize this? Though Einstein might have thought it up, this formula was used here at EHS everyday. Energy is equal to the Mathematics Department times a constant amount of homework. The easy equation was consistent no matter what the math subject. The traditional plane geometry, Algebra I and II, and trigonometry were fine examples of the dependent variable M (Math Dept.) When combined with the "new concept" courses of SMSG intermediate and advanced mathematics, SMSG geometry, and the course of analytic geometry, the equation was certainly harder to solve. But our formula could be found by the outstanding guidance that our math teachers provided. As many loyal Eagles soon found out, another essential part of $E = MC^2$ was the C^2 , the constant amount of homework; a tough assignment for a better future in the field of mathematics.

Solving a difficult complex algebraic fraction can be intriguing but hard, as Charlie Matson, Dee McGarity, and Aaron Mahr find out.

SCIENCE

Department provides acrid challenge for eager students
Chemistry, Biology, and Physics head the study program

The provocative, pervading, and pungent smell which sometimes diffused through the 200 building may still remain a mystery to many EHS students. For those who finished the year without knowing its true origin, they haven't undergone the thrill of lighting a Bunson burner. The chemistry laboratory was that traditional cause of many twitching noses, but also of intense work in the field. In addition to chemistry, the Science Department offered to us courses in biology, physics, and general sciences. Those students who never dissected a frog, mixed sulfuric acid with water, or measured the speed and distance of a pedaling bicyclist, were missing a great challenge at Edgewater.

Right: Biology II class provides fine laboratory instruments which Chuck Cornwall and Sharon Friedly use in an experiment.

Upper left: An experiment in dynamics concerning the speed-motion-distance laws of physics, finds students Bill Rogers, Larry Johnson, Rick Sickles, and Ronald Cicero diligently at work. Above: Students Robbie Shinske and Wilson Green heat a solution for a chem-study experiment.

As a part of their studies of history, world history students do research and report on topics of special interest to them; Howard Lefkowitz speaks to the class on his religion.

The humanities, and studies of people and their behavior is extended into college as a vital part of its curriculum. Knowing this, the Social Studies Department emphasizes the thinking and culture of human beings from every corner of the globe. The beginning of our social studies at Edgewater is introduced in an essential course—Sophomore Social Studies. This provided the needed knowledge for the advanced courses later on. Psychology and sociology emphasize the learning of man's mind and social growth. U. S. and world history classes dig into the background of the actions which mankind has created since his development. The Social Studies Department made a major contribution to human alliance and understanding among individuals. Predicting the future was easier in light of history.

SOCIAL STUDIES

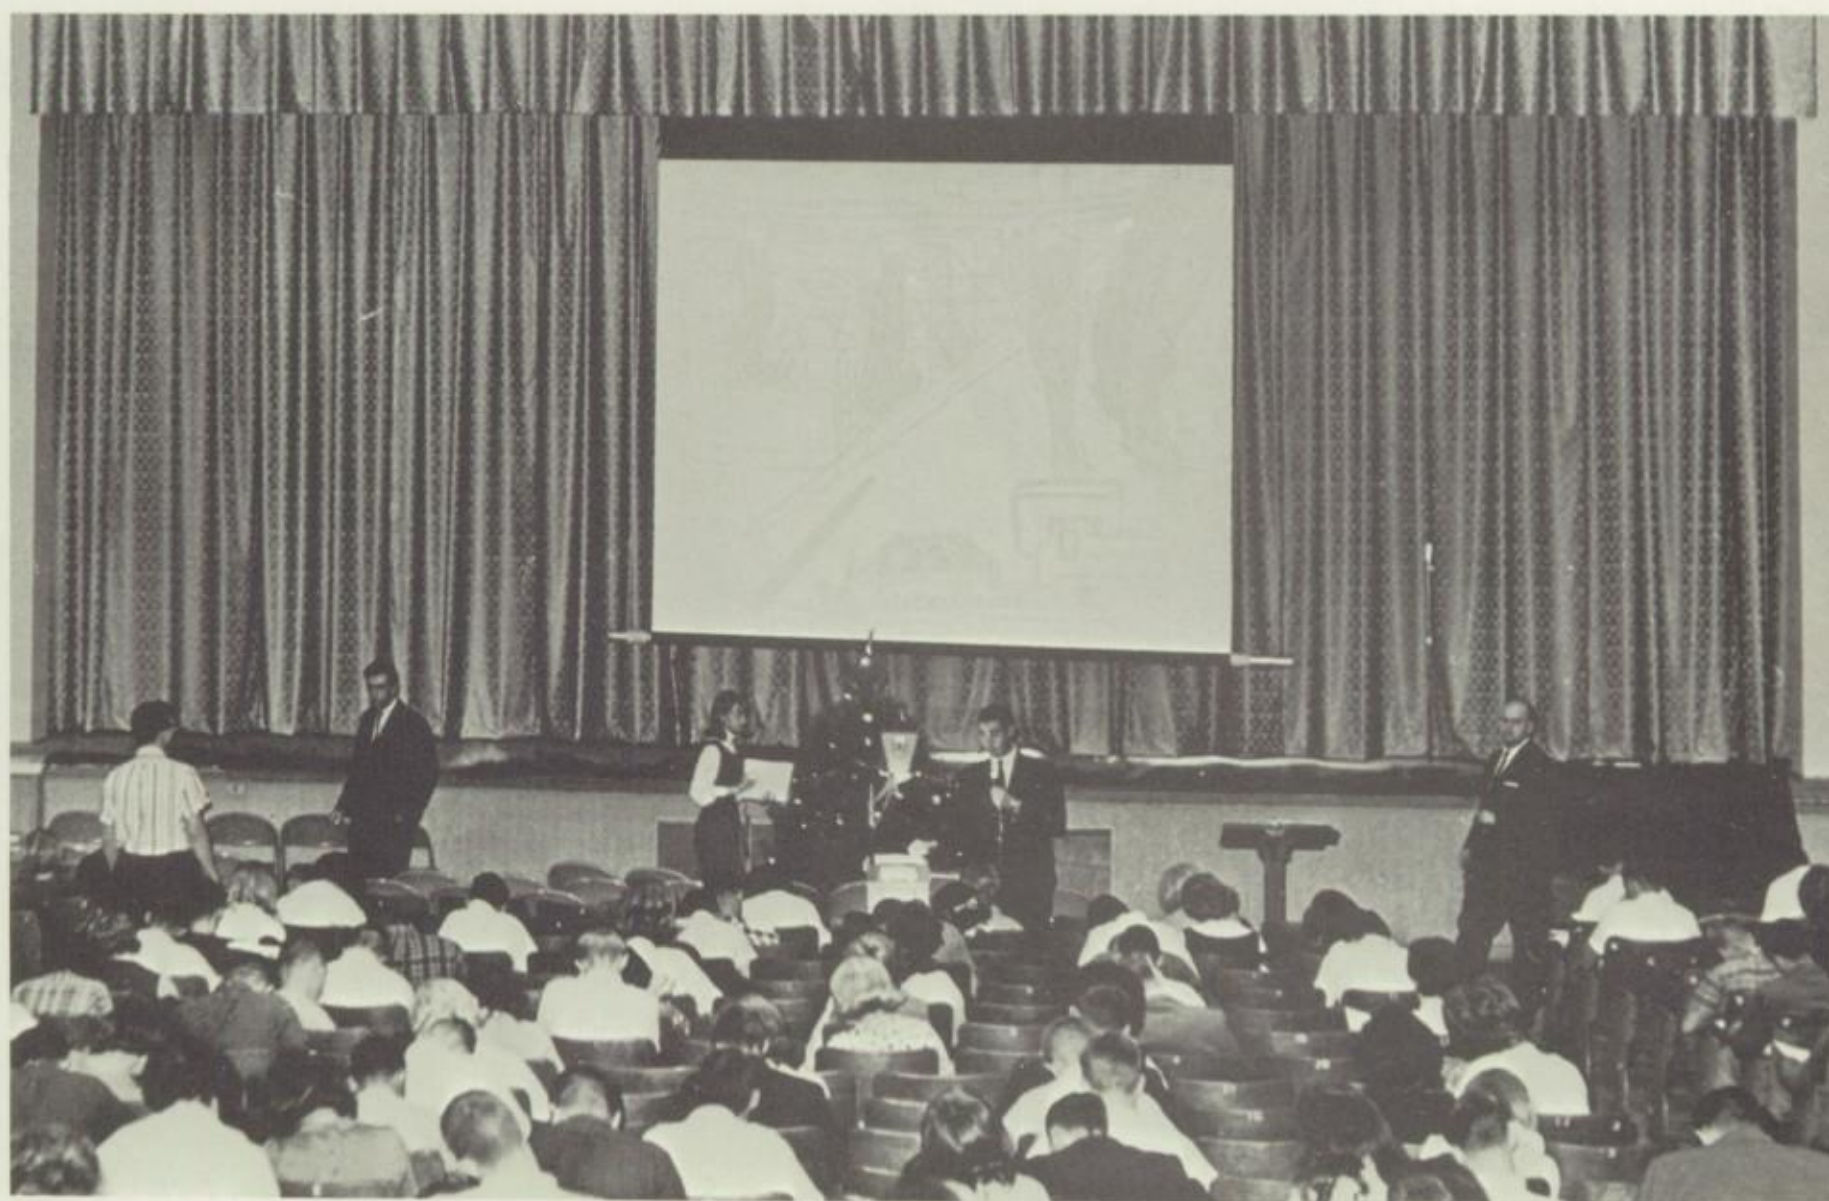

Department seeks universal understanding between men

Library research indicates an assignment in Social Studies II for sophomores Bruce Hooper, Carolyn Tubb, Wilson Green, Joyce McKey.

Psychology students Lynn Arost and Alan Sandman (left) test the learning processes of the mind. Mr. Kamrad (above) offers special instruction to John Best, Juli Marvin and Paul Raymond in their sociological research. The team teaching U. S. History class can grasp the concepts of history through visual aids and other teaching devices (below).

VOCATIONAL DEPARTMENT

Creates and Molds Future Careers
for Edgewater Students

The Vocational Education Department here at Edgewater is comprised of the training in varied fields of the Business world. EHS students are not only given the opportunity to learn and study about these occupations, but are able to receive training and experience by actual, on-the-job action. Areas dealing with the actual preparation for a job of the future are: CBE, which enables the students to learn and experience the skill of actual office work; DE, where the art of selling is expounded; and CIT, in which various fields are covered.

Other vocations deal in Vocational Agriculture, Auto Mechanics, and Home Economics.

PE CLASSES

Strive for Perfection in Basketball, Soccer and Volleyball

Whether flabby or muscular, fat or thin; all Eagles participated in a class, devoting their entire time exercising and in playing football or even volleyball. Weight lifting intrigued the boys this year. For the first time girls wore red, one-piece gym suits and they particularly liked square and modern dancing. All PE students came out with a healthier and more active body, with a better friendship and better sportsmanship.

Above: Volleyball highlights the girls' classes. The enthusiastic fourth period class shows sportsmanship while battling for top scores. Above Right: Eagles show eagerness to improve their skills, whether in a team effort or individually. Right: Rough and ready soccer players hit hard and fast while competing against their friends.

Improve their Talents

Active and very imaginative art students have improved your "campus beautiful" as well as their artistic ability. Under the guidance of Mrs. Widener, colorful paintings, banners and posters helped give spirit to our student body, even to our teams.

Commercial Art 1, 2 had the main objective of getting their ingenious minds working to better Edgewater; Art 3, 4 devoted most of its time to learning and searching for hidden talents, while fifth period enjoyed using their hands in crafts. All classes stimulated the creation of new ideas and works of beauty in many forms and shapes.

SPORTS

The world of athletics encompasses a vibrant pageantry of color, action, and suspense. A burst of power at the goal line for that all important touchdown or an eager grasp of hands upon the flying basketball express man's drive for a success. Straining to pull the oar for that winning second, or throwing a fast ball during a frantic double play in the ninth inning are events that mould fine bodies and alert minds.

EAGLE VARSITY

Eagles Score Fourth Best Season in Edgewater's History

Alvin Livingston

Edgewater's Fighting Eagles embarked on their '64 season with a host of lettermen and crew of seasoned coaches. The ten-game season resulted in a 7-3 won-lost record. First place in the Metro Conference was undecided until the final seconds of the traditional clash between Boone and Edgewater. Results placed E.H.S. fourth in the Metro Conference standings.

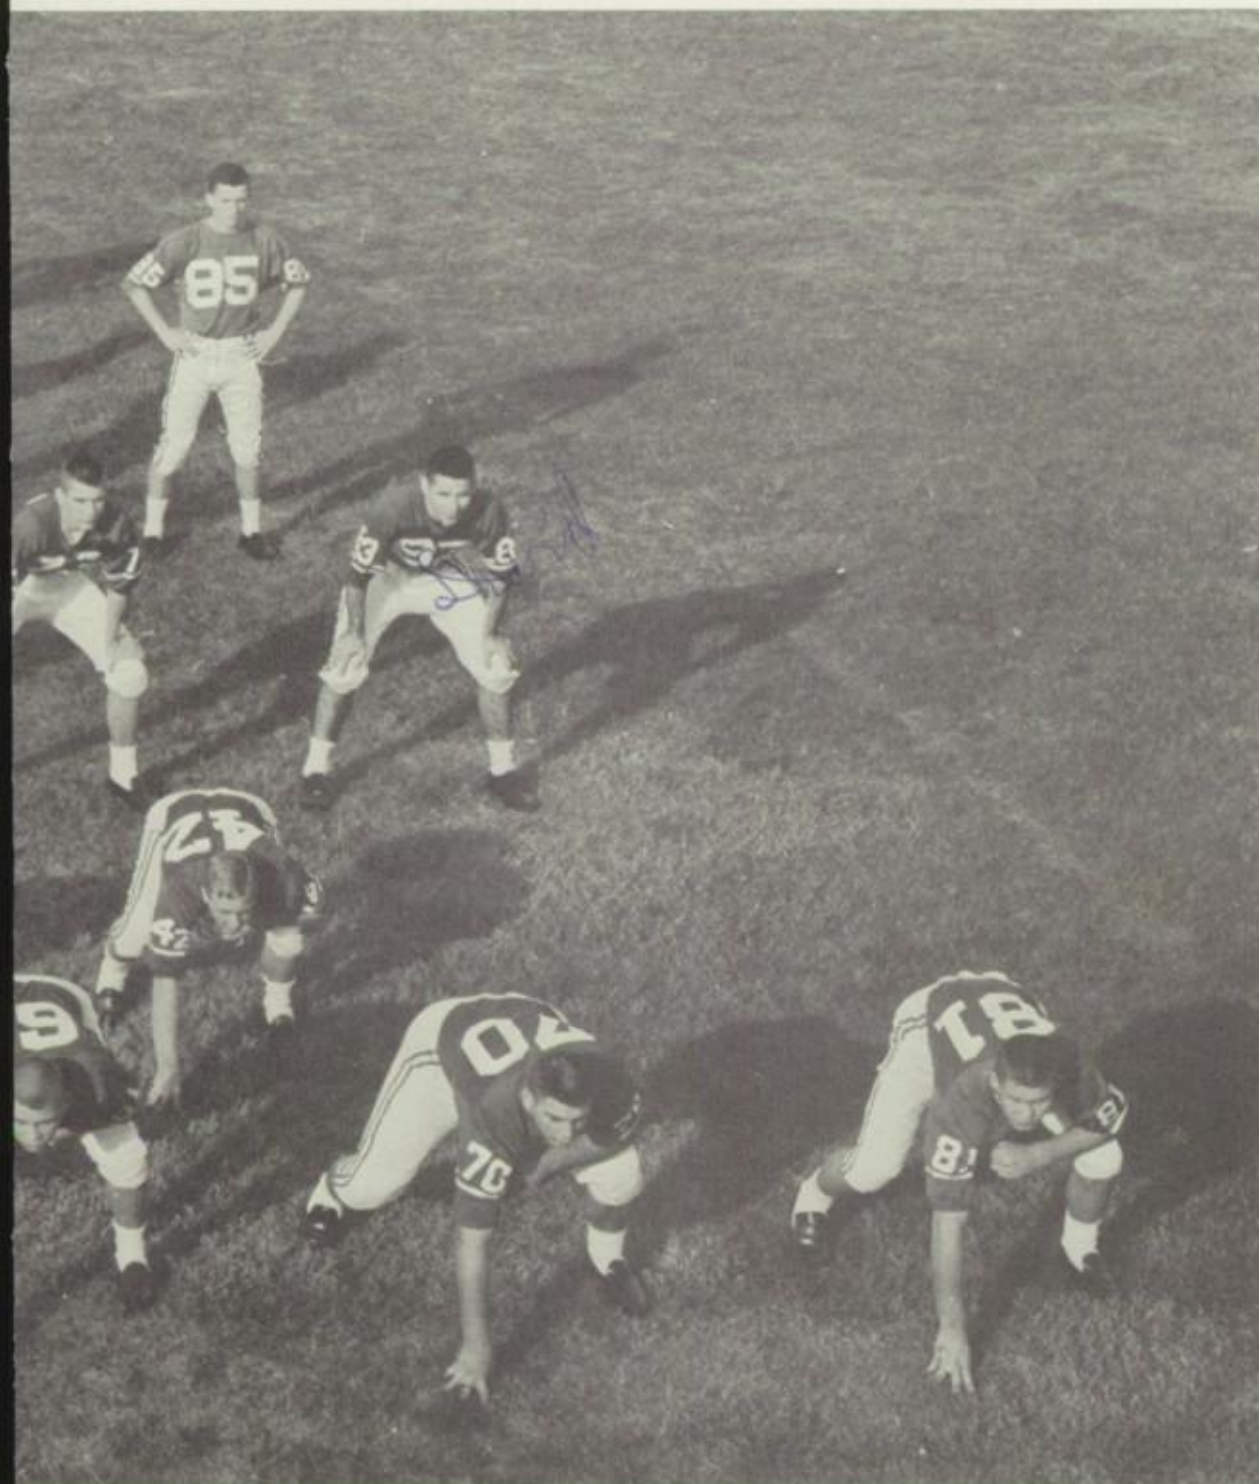

Edgewater opened at home against Melbourne, taking a 13-6 victory.

Bishop Moore's serial game was smothered for a 20-6 Eagle victory. Foreign territory proved to be no handicap to the E.H.S. eleven as, fighting for every yard, Edgewater won a victory, 13-0 over Sanford.

Excitement mounted in mid-season when the Eagles took a 25-0 victory over the Winter Park Wildcats. A tumble from fourth in state ratings followed when Cocoa Tigers bested the Edgewater Eagles, 12-7, in a decisive game. E.H.S. rebounded with a victory 34-13, against Ocala for a marked Homecoming win.

Almost but not quite describes the rest of the season. Edgewater failed to mount a sustained offense and in the final minutes of the game Colonial scored the only touchdown for a 7-0 win. Edgewater came back to take Evans in a lopsided victory of 31-0. E.H.S. ended the '64 season against Boone when the final bid for second place in the Conference was repelled by an 18-12 Boone win.

FIGHT'N EAGLES

Wage a Grueling Battle for the Metro Conference Crown

Many familiar faces could easily be recognized as the Eagle Varsity huddled in the first game. Lettermen Gary Hall, Mike Rom, John Best, Jim McConnel, Randy Beasley, David Hamilton, and John Bazzo gave Edgewater assurance of excellent prospects for a successful season. New personalities such as Harold Moore, Chris Conlon, and Joe Schmidt distinguished themselves in offensive action, while the linemen fought a desperate battle to hold opponents' scoring attempts to a minimum during an intensely competitive year on the gridiron.

Below: Plunging deep into Sanford territory, Harold Moore gains an important first down.

Edgewater's Junior Varsity football team, headed by Coaches Martin and Singhaus, finished the season with a successful 4-1-1 record. In their first game against the Winter Park Wildcats, the Eagles earned a 7-6 victory, but they could do no more than tie Bishop Moore, 0-0, in the second. Functioning smoothly, Edgewater stifled the challenge issued by the Grenadiers of Colonial, 18-8, and held Oak Ridge scoreless in a 13-0 victory for EHS. Sanford handed the Eagles their only loss, 0-7, but Edgewater retaliated with a 7-6 final victory against Boone.

BASKETBALL

High-Flying Eagle Cagers Journey to State Tournament

Upper right. Evans can't stop the Eagles as Tommy Wilson gains possession of a rebound.

Lower left. Up in the air, Kent Stewart readies a crucial pass for teammate John Parker.

Return to the year '60-'61! That year Edgewater went to State Tournament, and that also was the goal set for this year's Eagle basketball team by Coach Jim Cinnamon. E.H.S., with an excellent height advantage, set about attaining this goal with unprecedented victories. Still undefeated, the varsity lettermen travelled to Pompano Beach to play in a Christmas tournament where they received a second-place trophy after losing out in the finals. Edgewater then successfully met the challenge offered by its strongest Metro opponent, Evans, and followed suit with repetition of victories over other conference foes. After winning Metro and regional titles, E.H.S. was beaten by Jacksonville Paxon in the semifinals of the State Tournament.

Tall was the best adjective to describe the '64-'65 Eagle basketball team. An average height of 6 ft. 3 in. is a good explanation for the varsity lettermen's completing a highly successful season. Court veterans like Ralph Eriksson, Joe Walton and Kent Stewart translated experience into victory. Outstanding juniors included Tommy Wilson, Phil Jameson and Jacob Stuart.

J.V. BASKETBALL

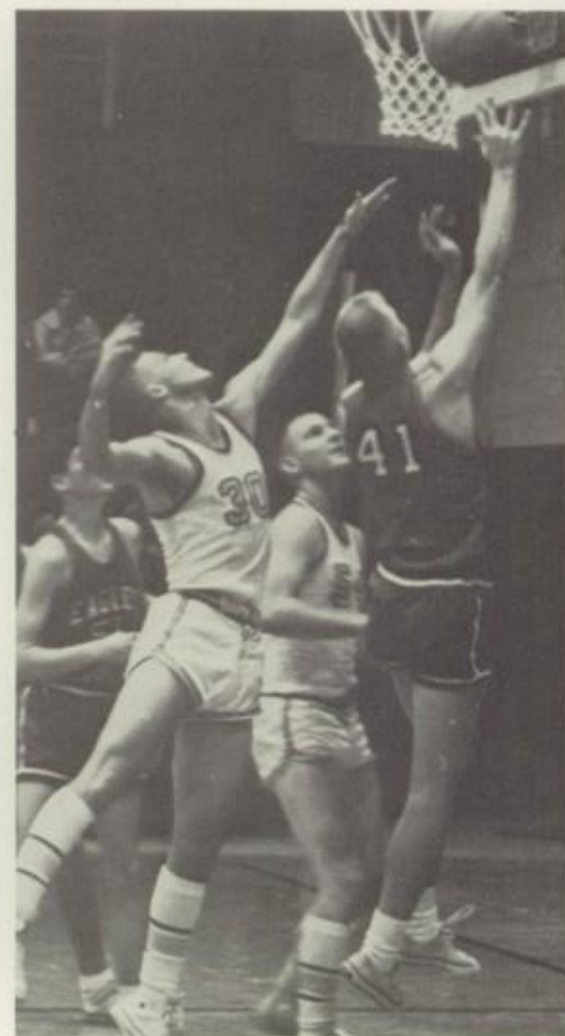

Builds Character and Stamina Throughout Season.

This year's Junior Varsity Basketball team, coached by Mr. Burke, continuously fought gamely, if not always successfully, building character and stamina during the year.

Inexperienced at the beginning of the year, the J.V. team profited from many meetings with fine opponents, and they looked forward to a better season in '66.

BASEBALL TEAM

Masters the Diamond for a Successful Season

Finishing their '64 season with a record of 10 wins and 8 losses, the Eagle baseball team earned 4th place in the Metro conference with an average of .556. Showing above average ability on the ball diamond last year, the Eagle nine hoped to improve this season in the playing field and at bat under the leadership of Coach Bob Maples.

TRACK TEAM

Sets New School Records

Upper left. With a fourth lap left to go, Lenny Lindgren leads his teammates in the mile.
Upper right. Starting to turn, Terry Lester prepares to hurl the discus for a new record.

Although the track team did not capture enough track meets to set a new record, a few individuals did set records for the school at the meets in individual competition with encouragement by Coach Blackwelder in the '64 season. Dwight De Vane captured the county pole vault record. Also Neil Jenkins ran for a school record in the mile run.

Lower left. Exchanging the baton, Paul Bradley relieves Sonny Shannon in the mile relay.
Lower right. Racing for the finish, Jim Bostic and Ed Demski tie in the 100 yard dash.

BOWLING TEAM

Lower right. Displaying excellent bowling form, Tom Hahn delivers the ball for ten pins.
Lower left. Knocking down the remaining pins, Joyce Echon ends the frame with a spare.

With its first year of competition, the 1964 boys' bowling team captured the league title. However, the girls failed to equal the record set by their male counterparts since they placed in the middle of the league. In 1965 both teams managed to eliminate the strongest of their opponents, and E H S was able to claim this year's championship.

EAGLE SWIM TEAM

Dives to a Successful Season for Edgewater

Living up to Edgewater's fine reputation in swimming, the 1964 girls' swimming team placed second in the Metro Conference with 7 wins and 3 losses. They also captured third place in the district. Participating in the state meets was a highlight to the girls. Equaling the girls' position with second place in the Metro meets, the boys' swimming team finished their season with second place in the county and compiled a record of 4 wins and 5 losses.

EHS CREW

is Noteworthy as Orlando's Only High School Team

Spring brought a new and unusual sport to Edgewater. Defeat of the Junior Varsity rowers of American University started our crew team on a highly successful season.

Racing with college teams they defeated all of their opponents but Rollins. Going to Poughkeepsie and selecting the new shell completed an active, as well as successful year.

TENNIS TEAM

Encounters Intensely Competitive Court Battles

Edgewater's tennis teams, subjected to strong court opposition, emerged with varying records from their 1964 season. An undefeated record was maintained by the girls during regular season competition.

Because they placed second in the district matches, the girls traveled to the State Tournament where they were defeated. Failing to produce a comparable record, the boys' team won only four out of seven matches.

GOLF TEAM

Finishes Victorious Season by Capturing Conference Title

Coach Cinnamon's guidance plus constant practice combined to give Edgewater's golf team the necessary skill to bring home the 1964 Metro Conference Championship. Edgewater was successful in overcoming vigorous inter-school competition to win five out of six matches and capture third spot in the group tournament. Results of spring training practice justified hopes for another successful golfing season.

ORGANIZATIONS

After the white candle of scholarship has been lighted and burns brightly, its enlightenment spreads to the application of knowledge in service and extracurricular activities. Organizations occupy hands which, if not given these opportunities, might otherwise be idle. All of our clubs, whether supporting A. F. S. or beautifying the campus, created projects and programs which helped shape education.

Combining thoughts and efforts, 46 members of Odasagiah staff produced a pictorial remembrance of their school year. Staff members were divided into three classes, each meeting a separate period in room 156. During the first period the business staff met while the two editorial staffs held a class during the fourth and sixth periods.

Competently led by Mrs. L. Abke and Miss B. Waldron, the editorial staff endeavored to produce an All-American yearbook. Bleeding and cropping were frantically executed as the staff strived to meet deadline.

Advertising was the responsibility of the business staff which was under the guidance of Miss M. Panico. A one-day bargain sale and numerous credit sales aided in financing.

Through the presentation of a skit in May, the staff introduced the yearbook to the student body.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Stimulates Action for A Year of Service

With the vigor and excitement an active Student Council yields, Edgewater was carried to new heights of service and spirit.

Drives supporting the A.F.S. program were launched through movies, Class penny jars, and the selling of candy and stocks. Distribution of Student Identification cards fixed higher standards for EHS students, while the use of handy Student Directories was an added convenience. Management of the Student's parking lot coupled with the responsibility of the Homecoming ceremonies, proved to be this year's major accomplishments. Working along with the student Council, Gus Ramos and Vera de Borges were terrific in carrying out this year's universal theme, which permits EHS Eagles to understand others from foreign countries.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Demands Students Reflect Character

The stage is set with students clothed in white graduation gowns; the audience sits calmly. The tension rises into a moment of expectation as the new Honor Society initiates are tapped. This impressive ceremony brings joy, sorrow, disappointment and happiness into so many lives, and so many futures. The society represents the highest and most notable honor that an EHS student can obtain. Qualities for selection of its members are character, scholarship, leadership and service—all shown in every member.

For the seniors the tapping was a wonderful finale to an enriching year. The newly inducted juniors could then look forward to outstanding Honor Society programs.

After the traditional speeches were given on scholarship, leadership, character, and service, the tension mounted in the audience as old members, robed in white, came down for the tapping. Surprise and joy were seen on the faces of new members as they were led up to the podium to receive membership cards and ribbons. After the tapping, they were plunged into the club's activities, selling brownies, car washing, and planning banquet.

TORCH SOCIETY

Aids School by Promoting High Scholarship Standards

To maintain membership in Torch Society, members must uphold a "B" average. They have graduated from Junior Honor Society, and many were tapped new members of the National Honor Society in February. Monthly meetings were held, directed by the sponsor, Miss Jean Dickenson, often with guest speakers giving lectures on keeping up grades, college, and other topics for academic students.

Edgewater's answer to a Shorthand Honor Society is a group known as the Gregg Writers. It comprises those students of Shorthand I who maintained a B average and students of Shorthand II who have held a C average during the scholastic year. Gregg Writers endeavor to improve the scholastic standards and quality of the secretarial courses.

QUILL AND SCROLL

Demonstrates Journalistic Talents Through School Year

Quill and Scroll signifies the achievement of excellence in high school journalism. Those students who have been deemed worthy of membership devoted themselves to the publication of the yearbook and the school paper. As a further employment of their talents, the members directed their efforts toward the planning of a literary magazine.

As an honor club, Spanish Honor Society strived to spread Spanish culture at Edgewater. Members held a Tupperware party as their money-making project. During the Christmas holidays, members thoroughly enjoyed a typical Mexican party. As the year drew to a close, new honor students were selected, then initiated into the honorary club.

ANCHOR CLUB

Strives for the Betterment of Campus and Community

Under capable leadership, Anchor Club undertook and completed many projects both for EHS and the community. Ambitious members cleaned windows during Christmas Holidays. They voluntarily offered their services to Sunland by the collection of trading stamps. Needy children received dolls dressed by members. They also held Bread Day for Pilot Club. Adept members built and entered a float in the Homecoming Parade. Energetic truly was a Key word for one of the busiest clubs of service on campus.

In true spirit of Christmas, Pan American Club gave a Yuletide party for some orphans. The scene of the merry making was the Children's Home at Enterprise, Florida.

Selling candy was the Spanish club's greatest fund-raising project. Many times during the year members appeared on lunch shifts soliciting those with a "sweet tooth." Field trips were common events for Pan American Club members this year. They traveled to many picturesque places in Florida; some even went on a conducted tour of Mexico during Christmas vacation. Their longest trip in this state was one to St. Augustine. Arriving in the "Oldest City in the U.S.A.", students found Spain's influence in sites such as Castillo de Marcos, Fort Mantanzas, Fountain of Youth.

For a taste of Spanish food Miss Ameison took club members to Tampa. Dining at the renowned "Columbia", they found Spanish food delicious.

GERMAN CLUB

Makes Study of Germany's Unique Culture and History

Germany's civilization provided the German Club with an interesting topic of study. Several speakers from Germany spoke to club members about the culture of that country. Historical films brought to life the colorful past of Germany.

Joining with Latin Club, German Club helped to make the 1965 Eaglecade a rousing success. Boarding Greyhound buses, loyal Eagles were carried to Englewood. There they watched the Edgewater cagers hand Englewood's team a sound defeat.

To end the year on a happy note several of the club members planned a sumptuous banquet—German style. They enjoyed many native dishes of Germany including saur kraut and wiener schnitzel.

Latin Club combined service and leadership to fulfill their reputation as one of the active clubs at Edgewater. They took charge of the food bar for a Railroad Ramble in November, held the Door Decoration Contest at Christmas, and sponsored an Eaglecade for a basketball game with Jacksonville on February 12. A Latin Forum at Tarpon Springs in April and a banquet in May concluded a busy year.

РУССКОЕ СОБРАНИЕ

Initiates Intellectual Appreciation

With the addition of Mr. Watts to the Edgewater faculty, Edgewater was the first school in the county to offer Russian and to sponsor a Russian Club. Club members journeyed to St. Petersburg to view the colorful Russian Orthodox celebration of Easter, established a Russian choir, and presented the slate of new officers at a banquet featuring Russian food. A pattern for tradition was the year's record as the members programmed activities.

YOUTH FOR CHRIST

Relates the Message of Christ to Everyday Experiences

Following the command of Christ to make disciples of all nations, the Youth for Christ members have made the Edgewater campus their opportunity for sharing the word of God. Bible study alternated with guest speakers, panels, and films acquainted the group with scripture and its application for teenagers and their problems.

Aware that physical, social, mental, and spiritual enrichment are necessary, Bill Hughes and Patricia Jones, lower left, and George C. Sparks and Colleen Henry, lower right, take time for fun and studies.

EAGLE EYE

Staff heads banner year with an award-winning newspaper

Roll the presses! But before they can, interviews, editorials and features must be written, fitted, edited, pasted up, and sent to the printer's. The production of an award-winning newspaper such as the Eagle Eye is rugged work and requires a competent and experienced staff.

While the editorial staff frantically looked for some place to put that extra inch of copy, the photographers were taking and producing feature photographs and the staff's humorists beat their brains for new clever ideas. The editors edited and cut and fitted and wondered what could have happened to that other feature page story.

The sales staff sold ads and drew the "coming soon" posters . . . and at last! It was off to the printer's: a brand new issue of Eagle Eye.

Floats, Christmas window painting and the traditional Winter Park Arts Festival were the activities enjoyed most by the Art Club. Many various paintings competed in the Lockhaven Art Center and Red Cross Art exhibit. CAMERA CLUB

Combines Pleasure With Experience in Photography

Camera Club made many contributions in recording the '65 school year. Members were observed taking pictures at all athletic and social events throughout the year. Some of these pictures were entered in state and national school competitions.

Varied techniques and methods in photography were observed on field trips throughout the year. These techniques were later put to use in developing photographs.

Sophomores, new to the school, have always found it difficult to organize clubs. This year, however, proved to be an exception as the Sophomore Tri-Hi-Y formed another chapter from the previously existing C.B. Tri-Hi-Y. The new Frances Bass Tri-Hi-Y began their fund raising projects with posters about the campus announcing that "C.C. Day is coming." All club members then sold candy canes to boost the Christmas spirit. They closed the year by having two girls represent their club at the "Youth and Government" convention in Tallahassee.

Chapter members of the Catherine Brumbaugh Tri-Hi-Y began projects by wrapping gifts at Holiday Shoes, a store located in the Colonial Mall. An ambitious program of ticket selling was launched as the girls sold tickets for Ivey's fashion show and Y.M.C.A. Christmas trees.

Their main project of service was their Big Sister Program through which they adopted needy children.

After Christmas the club split to provide greater opportunities of service for more girls. Their new chapter was named for Miss C. A. Mink, a faculty member of Edgewater. Miss Carter accepted the position of sponsor.

SENIOR-TRI-HI-Y

Shapes Future by Means of Service and Interest in Others

Once again the Eddith Montgomery and Lorena Thomas Senior Tri-Hi-Y's combined initiative, time, and energy in serving school and community. Service and the Tri-Hi-Y went hand in hand. Working hard was not a new slogan to these conscientious girls.

Under Miss Sarah Lou Cobb, the

Lorena Thomas club participated in the ALSAC Drive and collected for the Disabled Veterans. In order to boost school spirit for the annual Boone-Edgewater game, the club sold orange and white voodoo dolls. Other projects included the adoption of a needy family for Christmas and the weeding of the Paupers Cemetery for one of their spring projects.

The Eddith Montgomery club, under the sponsorship of Miss Peggy Hunt, sold rebel tags on all lunch shifts. They also took gifts to a needy family at Christmas.

Both clubs participated in the youth and government convention.

KEY CLUB

Devotes Year to Citizenship Through Active Service

"Inspire Individual Initiative" was the goal which guided the work of our 1964-65 Key Club.

In seeking to fulfill this very worthy objective, Key Clubbers under the direction of Mr. C. Bruce Aufhammer again directed their efforts to a year of service for both our school and community.

This year each member joined in projects to beautify the campus and assist other organizations. Special emphasis was placed upon improving the school spirit and maintaining academic excellence.

Three members, Steve Cole, Allen McCree, and Chuck Shaver, served as state officers, and helped the club host a division rally in October. Certainly, it was a year of marked achievement for our Key Club.

Service to faculty and students characterized this year's Civitan Club. Members reached a high point during football season as they held a successful dance after the Bishop Moore game, won an attendance award at Cocoa, and collected wood for the annual Boone-Edgewater bonfire.

Decorating the faculty lounge at Christmas and the cleaning of this lounge every two weeks were some of the ways in which Civitan expressed their appreciation to the faculty.

Money-raising efforts included a fruitcake sale and a basketball program sale to fans at all games.

Service to the student body was Hi-Y's primary ambition this year.

One of their main projects was to beautify our large campus. Thus members spent hours weeding gardens and working at other horticultural pursuits. During Christmas

Hi-Y collected cans of food for the needy and in January they put lights on the marquee. Members attended the convention at Clearwater and concluded an active year by participating in the Youth and Government Legislature held at Tallahassee, Florida.

INTERACT

Introduces Annual Club Sweetheart Selection at EHS

Serving EHS during the 1964-65 school year, Interact, sponsored by Mr. King, completed many worthwhile projects. Donations of $40 to the NFL and money to the cafeteria air-conditioning fund were among these. When Christmas came to EHS, Interact decorated a tree.

Having built our new trophy case last year, the Interact Club took the responsibility of cleaning it.

Special recognition has been bestowed upon Interact this year for its establishing the annual selection of a club sweetheart by various clubs on the school campus.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

Steer to Dedicated Teaching Careers

Mrs. Mary Wilson

Carol J. Carnahan

Supplying the schools of tomorrow with dedicated teachers was the goal of Future teachers of America.

Experience in community service was gained throughout the year in projects, the biggest being a merry Christmas party held for eight underprivileged children. The club supplied tutors for EHS and neighboring schools with proceeds going toward scholarships for qualified seniors. Other projects for this scholarship fund were a card party which included a brunch, concession stands during the Railroad Rambles, and several carwashes. Also, assistance was given the faculty for National Educational Week.

In the fall and spring members went to other schools for observation of teachers and teaching methods in their own field of interest and had a chance to weigh for themselves advantages and disadvantages of such a career. With this background, teachers of tomorrow will serve humanity with dedicated perseverance and zeal.

Programs designed for training were presented to the group through the year. These social-educational meetings were held once a month and offered a variety of interesting, informative topics. Included among the themes were an initiation talk on the meaning of F. T. A., a vivid description of the events that took place at the state convention, and a discussion of overseas schools by Vera da Rosa Borges and Gus Ramos, our two exchange students.

CHESS CLUB

Competes With County Teams for Top Honors

Composed of members whose goal was to increase interest in chess, Edgewater's Chess Club has doubled its membership in the past year at meetings and tournaments. Holding tournaments within the school, they have chosen the members of the team who have returned with top honors. In addition the club has sponsored lectures by the top experts in Orlando and from the surrounding States of Florida.

FUTURE SECRETARIES

Promote Interest In Secretarial Occupations

Participating in the county and state, Edgewater's Future Secretaries were honored when one of their members was elected as county president. At Edgewater the members of the club outfitted one room with new typewriter covers. In the past year the club has sponsored career day participation and faculty tea under the guidance of Mrs. Kiser.

FUTURE FARMERS

Assist in Maintenance and Beautification of Campus

With the help and leadership of their capable sponsor, Mr. Davis, the Future Farmers of America pursued many vocational goals during the schoolyear. Among these projects was the expansion of the ornamental propagation unit located behind the Auto Mechanics Building. The club members also helped with the maintenance and beautification of the EHS campus and participated in some state judging contests at the Florida State Fair in Tampa and the State FFA convention in Daytona, where they won high honors for their achievements.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS

Skillfully Blend Service and Ingenuity

Into the mixing bowl of clubs and school activities at Edgewater this year dropped a group of enthusiastic homemaking students and their capable sponsor, Mrs. Rendulic. By dressing dolls for "Toys for Tots" and giving a faculty tea, the girls blended service projects with homemaking projects, for which some of the members received their degrees of achievement. Spice was added by the district meeting held at Edgewater and two mother-daughter banquets. All this plus a dash of ingenuity and skill and seasoned to taste with fun and friendly companionship was the secret for Edgewater's Future Homemakers of America—a perfect recipe for an active club.

PARA MEDICS

Portray the Good Samaritan by Helping Others In Need

Devotion to helping others was the main objective of Para Medics this year. By giving spare time to a local hospital, the members reaped a rich harvest of satisfaction and learned the meaning of fulfillment. As many of the active members plan a medical career, the club afforded a good opportunity.

Para Medics, besides the worthwhile service projects, carried out an active social calendar. District and state conventions and the card party sponsored by the club rounded out an industrious year.

BI-PHY-CHEM

Members Apply Science to Create A Better Life and School

Whether it was the sale of Venus Fly Traps or the announcements of the many field trips planned by the club, Edgewater students realized that Bi-Phy-Chem had a new and even more active program. This year was enlivened by the animated lectures, projects, and experiments performed by the members. At FSU a convention drew the year to an exuberant and satisfying end.

COOPERATIVE BUSINESS EDUCATION

Prepares for Vocations of the Future

Diane Patterson puts her knowledge to use. Presiding at a club meeting, Donna Dineen receives many suggestions from the floor.

In order to learn, one must first learn the fundamentals, then graduate to the success of performing and rendering their knowledge as a service; service to and for the public.

Teaching to render these services is the prospective and ultimate goal of the Cooperative Business Education Program. C.B.E. is a program by which the student attends school for half-day, then returns to the job, for a lesson of on-the-job-training. Each day a fixed number of hours is spent preparing for the future jobs.

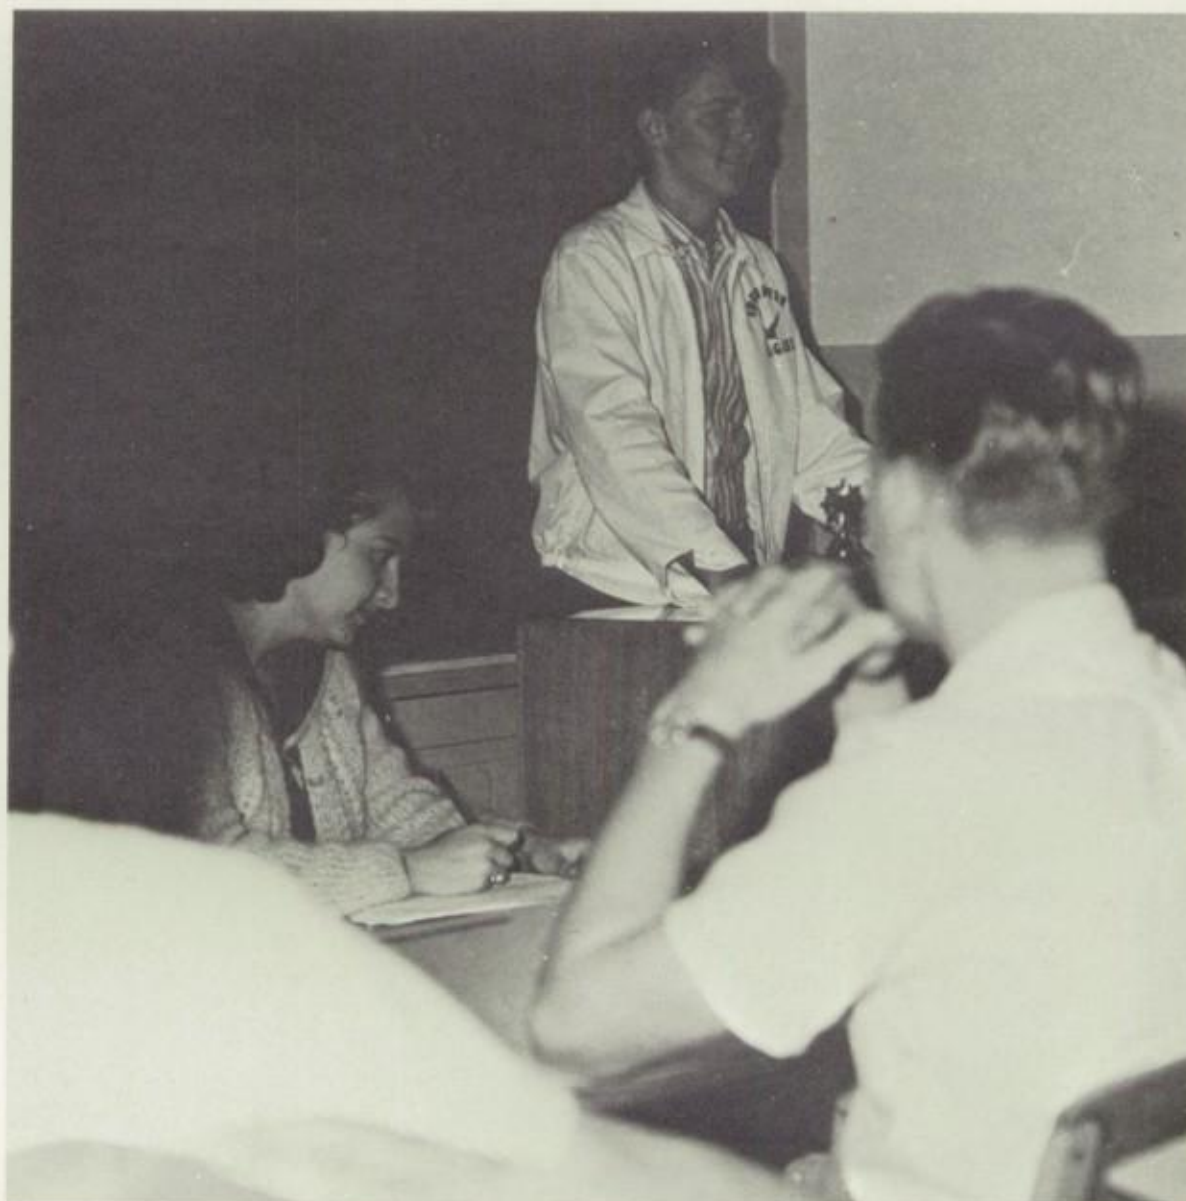

First Row: Vicki Hamm, Sandy L. Heintz, Pat Lashly, Connie Blevins, Jo Winger. Second Row: Marilyn Finney, Elise Merrian, D. Patterson, K. Holloway, P. Erk, B. Dineen and Mrs. T. Smart kept the CBE program rolling as they typed, filed, and ran copies.

David Estes and Marty Bishop apply on-the-job-training to on-the-spot-experience.

Distributive Education is a cooperative training program in which juniors and seniors utilize their mornings in school and their afternoons working at various jobs. Selection of the students is made in the spring of the year. Two basic qualifications necessary for membership in D.E. are a minimum grade of "C" and good school attendance. In this program D.E. students gain vital experience from merchants in the Orlando area while completing high school. One of the highlights of the year was their employer-employee banquet.

Often many important suggestions are brought up during a Distributive Education meeting.

COOPERATIVE INDUSTRIAL TRAINING

Students get Education and Experience

Are the high school students of today preparing for their futures in the world of tomorrow?

The answer to this question for many is "no," for students today are facing a bitter dilemma. Both business and industry want training and experience. Many people cannot afford a college education because of these two factors.

To meet the needs of business and industry, Orange County Schools have arranged several programs. One of these programs is the Co-operative Industrial Training (CIT) program. This program is for the students who want business occupations for their career. With this program a student can get the experience of working as well as the education he needs; both are vital in a student's life.

Having an average of 10,000 books and from 1000 to 2000 books checked out monthly, ESH's library proved to be a well used library. The Library Council worked diligently each year to keep the library's shelves filled with the vast number of interesting books; they also kept it in good order for the convenience of all.

To promote and encourage an interest in books, reading and library services were the main purposes.

The selling of covers for school books and paperback books were the big projects this year. They have added many new books to the library with the profits they made.

EAGLE BOOSTERS

Stir Up Spirit in School Sports

"Go, Eagles, go!" was a familiar refrain at any of Edgewater's sports meets. The Eagle Boosters Club was another familiar part of sports to every student. At our games, where excitement, action, and pep were at their zenith, the Boosters did more to enhance the atmosphere by guiding students in backing our players and urging the team to victory.

This year's Eagle Boosters helped to raise money for the Junior-Senior Prom by selling key chains and making a float for the homecoming.

CHEERLEADERS'

Pep Bubbles Over for Eagle Victory

Splashes of red and white with bursts of exuberant spirit herald the presence of Edgewater's vivacious varsity cheerleaders. Through their interest and enthusiasm they helped rouse school spirit to a new peak; they encouraged the teams to victory after victory. They worked hard selling ads for the football and basketball programs and raising money to travel to all out-of-town games. Seemingly boundless energy was their trademark, and spirit was their greatest achievement.

This year's JV cheerleading squad was as colorful and vibrant as any group could be expected. They are (left to right) Sharon Kamenoff, Marine Marwick, Margie Gowing, Caroline Sapp, Sharon Reynolds, Donna Betts, Ruthie Lawrence, Babs Bower, B. Glenn, and D. Ridenouer.

JV CHEERLEADERS, COLORGUARDS

Advance Spirit, Enthusiasm, and Patriotism in Activities

The bubbling enthusiasm of the JV cheerleaders boosted spirit for the Baby Eagles through every game whether victory or defeat. Their spontaneous support and eager cheering made the JV season a more lively and exciting activity.

Our colorguards too, were a vital part of the school's activities. They appeared at the beginning of school assemblies, student gatherings, and athletic contests. The colorguards added a note of formality and patriotism to our school.

"Present colors," is the command from Ruth Oberlin, Gail Villeneuve, Reba Puckett, Charlene McCalmont, (captain) Barbara Hardy, and Lana Turner, as they salute the flag during a morning assembly.

Visual Aid boys help teachers in more ways than one. The task these boys undertake, is to be of the utmost importance, from running projections, to setting up sound equipment for stage plays and for the vast number of pep assemblies.

Yes, these boys keep Edgewater in focus and no project is too large nor to small for them to handle.

After ten years Mr. Smith decided to impart his knowledge to the Edgewater students, for their march into the business world of the future or for their own personal pleasure. The students also work on their cars.

Throughout the audience, there fell a hushed silence, as Edgewater's marching Eagle Band made its entrance onto the brightly lighted football field at halftime. Almost every week during football season, there was the same silence, as spectator's sat captivated, by the wide variety of drills, all executed with precision by the marching Eagles.

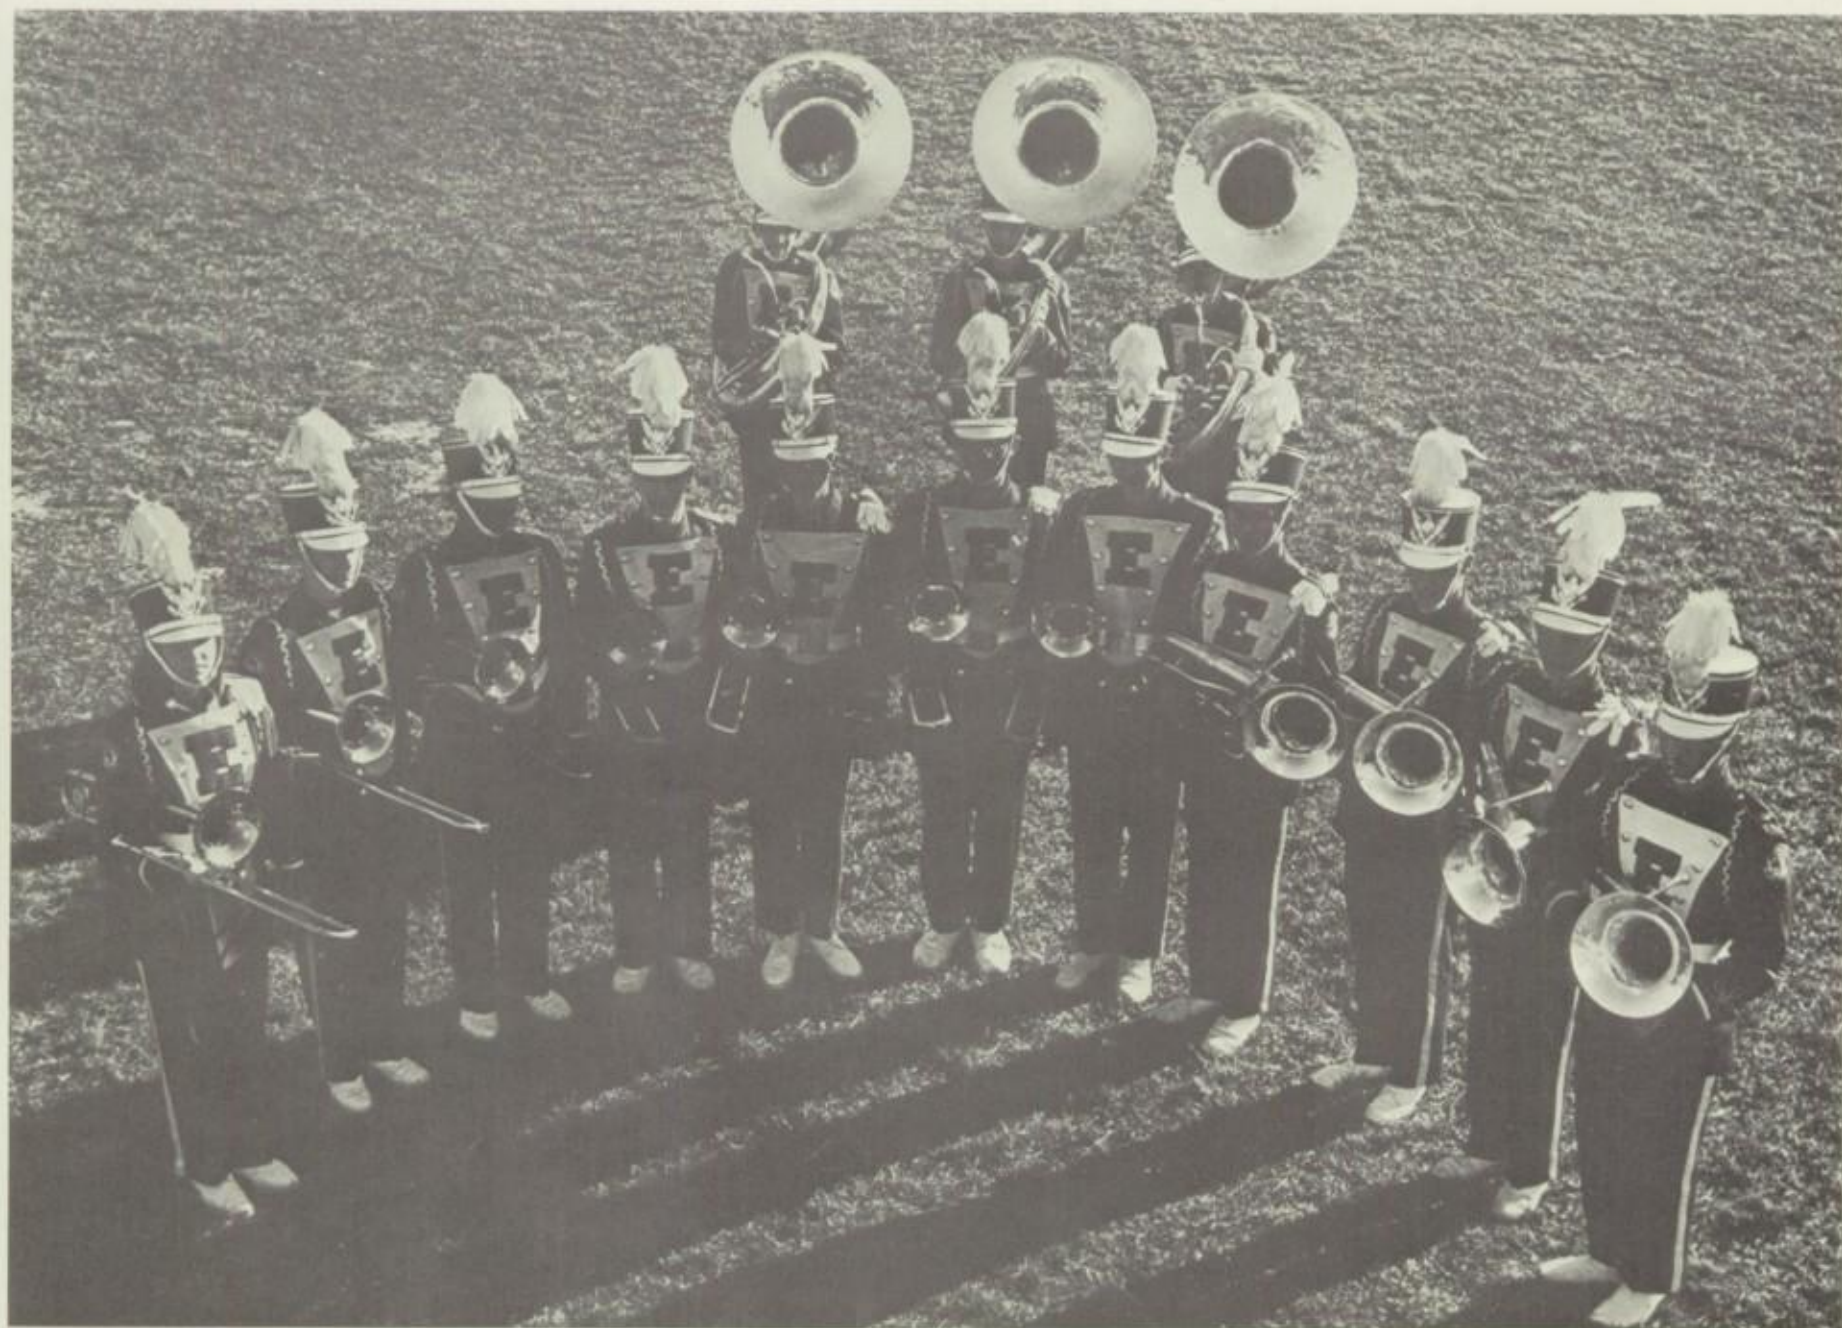

Christmas was a busy season for the marching Eagles as Christmas programs highlighted the parading agenda. They participated in the Orlando Christmas Parade. The Eagles marched their way into the hearts of Florida's people with their peppy tunes. When President Johnson visited Central Florida, the EHS band performed at the Plaza.

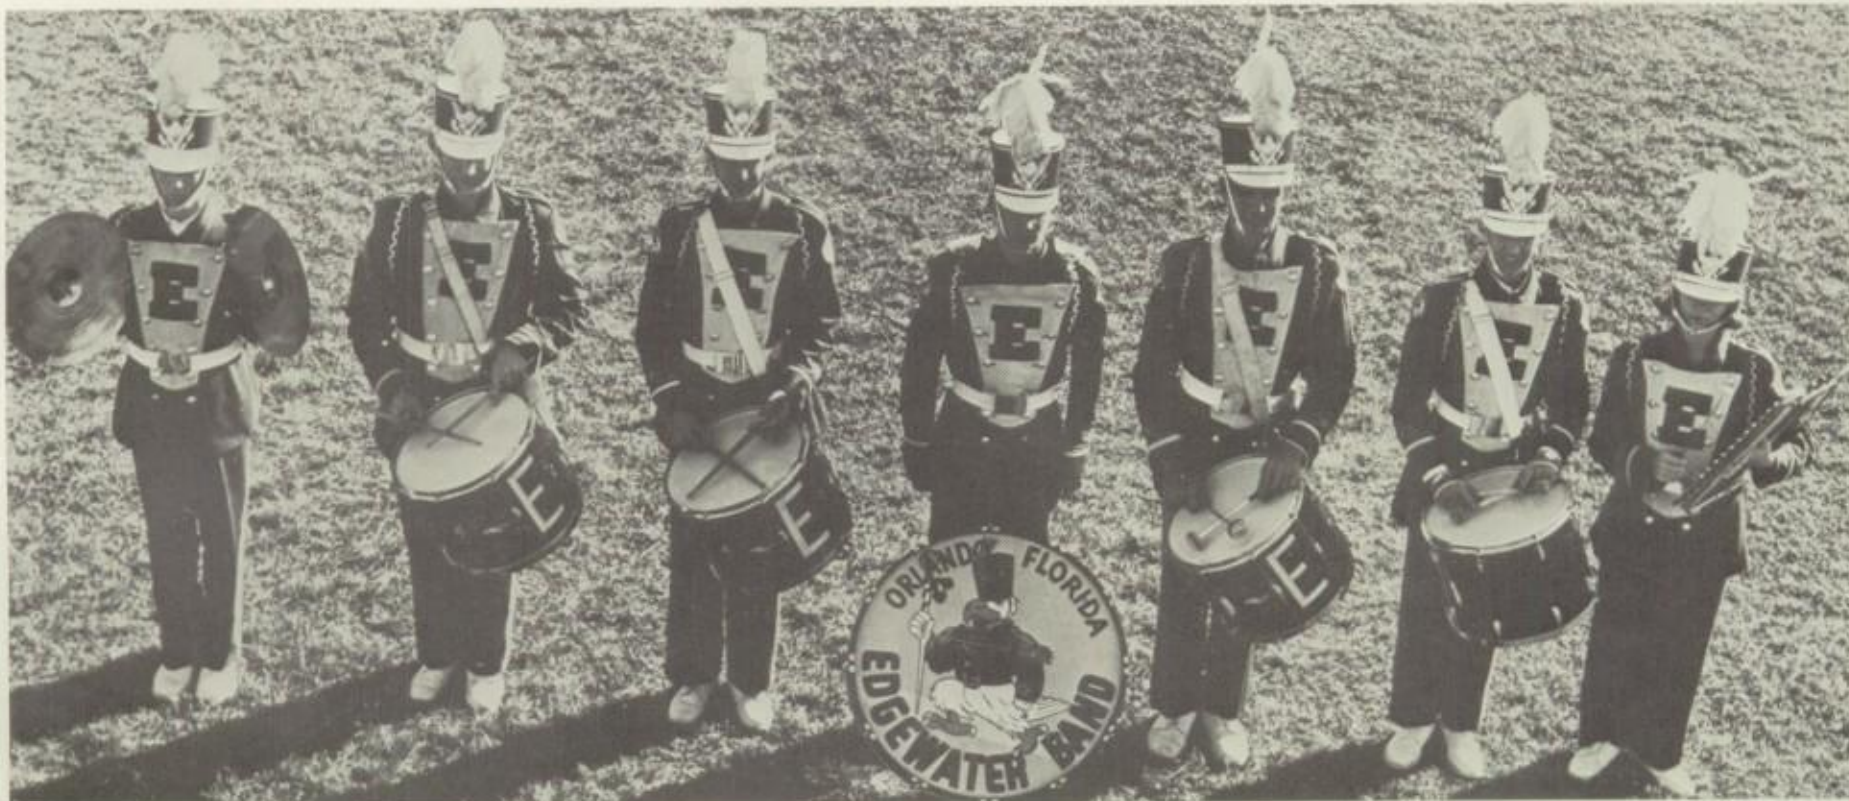

This year's band, the best yet, will always be remembered, for their dependability and outstanding performances. They represented Edgewater well in every aspect, which included receiving superior rating in competition.

E.H.S. MAJORETTES

Supplement Halftime Shows Adding Enthusiasm and Ability

Patty Runner, Captain.

Included in the many Edgewater traditions that have been an important part of our school support is a high regard toward the talents of the Twirling Eaglettes. Year after year these girls carry out assigned parts in half-time shows, parades, and contests with poise and ability acting as an integral member of the Edgewater band.

One of the many activities the E.H.S. Majorettes participate in is the annual Tangerine Bowl twirling contest which is held in Orlando. Again last year these girls represented Edgewater by executing their famous "St. Louis Blues" dance and twirl routine. Dressed in red and white uniforms, they brought home the winner's trophy.

Carol Sherrod, Co-Captain.

The E.H.S. Majorettes are Lynn Parades, Carta Scofield, Lucia Smith, Gladys Noe, Phyllis McNutt, Elaine Rose, Reah Miller, Bev Benson.

Edgewater's chorus is under the capable leadership of officers: Jennavon Cova-Secretary, Robert Sanders-President, Ginnie Thompson-Vice President, and Stephen Draper-Treasurer.

Many students found a new form of creative expression when they became members of the many singing groups at Edgewater. In addition to the Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Cargill, there is a Chorale composed of fifty members and also an Octet and Quartet.

Everyone at Edgewater enjoyed the Christmas program featuring the Chorus. Caroling at Parkwood Plaza and the Winter Park Mall prepared the Chorale for their appearance on television with Glenn Bishoff.

Spring brought feverish activity in preparation for concerts. Members practiced diligently and participated in World Day of Prayer.

CLASSES

People, lingering to talk with friends and classmates or rushing through the halls to their classes, transformed a lifeless structure to a throbbing center of creativity. Completing the final stage of their education, sophomores, juniors, and seniors began to use the knowledge they had gained in previous years to lay new and more complex foundations for the more stimulating and intellectual endeavors.

Commissioned to mold a perceptive young adult, teachers, parents, and advisors took advantage of the last hours needed to perfect the foundation of knowledge in the Senior Class of 1965. Time, activities, and friendships fashioned by ideals and desires increased in importance as twelve years of education came to a rewarding conclusion.

Events once achingly real became almost imperceptible lines in the design of adolescence. The radiant beauty of the Homecoming attendants, frenzied preparations for final exams, rewarding acquaintances with exchange students, the excitement and grandeur of graduation were soon but poignant memories. Now the failure and achievement, despondency and ecstasy of three important years were only echoes down the corridor of time as footsteps turned toward an even more promising future.

The Two Parties Represented in The National Election

Politics is one subject which can be avidly debated as Hank Kornick, Bryan Kincaid and Allen McCree show.

JUNIORS

Spin Into School Activities With Abundant Spirit, Making School Year a Success

Above, Junior Class secretary, Tegie Gibson, and treasurer, Linda Clark, aid funds by the selling of class rings. At right, Class President, Linda Allen, and Vice-President, Dave Holbrook, help decorate the gym for the Homecoming Dance. Below, Class sponsor, Mrs. Perry, gives some advice to her students.

The Junior Class, charged with the energy of summer, began school with the strength of a hurricane. After disposing of competitors Cleo and Dora, its members tore through jobs assigned them. Mrs. Perry, the storm's eye, gave them advice as they gained intensity by selling class rings. Next, they plowed into the Homecoming Dance and emerged without any loss of vigor. Gales of laughter were heard howling from the gym as they whipped out the student-faculty basketball game. Excitement raged with the approach of the Junior-Senior Prom. Class members made plans to meet with renewed vigor after soaking up the summer sun during the long, hot vacation.

Opposite, Harold Moore comes to the aid of a maiden in distress, Louise Hood, who finds buttoning gloves is a problem, even amidst elegant splendor of the Prom.

SOPHOMORES

Stride Toward Success As Our New Baby Eagles

Sharon Kamenoff and Leigh Montgomery pause (at right) to wonder what their futures may bring. Left: Sophomore officers perform their various duties as shown by vice-president Chuck Richards getting suggestions from classmates. Above: Peyton Potter checks with Mrs. Oberlin.

Bang! They're off! So the grueling cross-country race began. The contestants had stood excited and a little nervous in anticipation of the event; their high school careers. It seemed nearly impossible to surmount every obstacle, and yet they always caught a second wind to pass by themes and semester tests.

Teachers, parents, and Eagles running in other events cheered the sophomores as they strived on toward the goal. Their encouragement helped, but the runners knew that the laurels awaited only those who deserved them, those who had gone all the way to victory. Therefore they strained to win recognition as determined, loyal Eagles, and the rewards of self-discipline, knowledge, and memorable relationships would remain untarnished long after the race had been lost to memory or the annals of history.

President Larry Trautman and Secretary Becky Ross go over minutes of the last meeting.

Young Eagles Take Full Swing In Various Club Activities

Just as the welder (above left) fuses beam to beam as an integral part of our new building (below), so the school fuses important bits of wisdom to build its students. Many of these students, like Bill Parish and his model Lynn Arost (above right) will soon be entering the demanding professional world.

As EHS Continues to Grow, Students Build for the Future

The structure stands now, but it is still only a framework. There is still much work to be done. We look now to the future—to college, to jobs, to marriage—where those aims and activities of youth will be welded into the goals and accomplishments of adult life.

Steve Krone and Paul Raymond (below), striving to continue the academic excellence which high school initiated, go on to their college career. (Right) Linda Sapp dreams of the day when she will become a bride and make a home for herself and family.

Jack Boy it been sure has been great being your Chemistry student
You're a real great ass.
guy, even though you like Alabama better than Auburn. I know Auburn is better your same sweet self and you'll soar (like an eagle)
Keep Edgewater as great as it is.
Love, Luck,
Mailee

I wish I could put this in
Jack,
Good luck in the next year

back, this year fact Well really it's, you are
has not great or in summer for us it cost Best = We o really it cost Best = We Jobs and Port and Rich and Port and Rich

Jack,
Good luck in football next year.

David Altman

Dear
 I to reach her great knowing you these past few years I wish you the best I wish always expecting the next years in football and luck, and remember always got a friend. Good luck, and remember
 I

Dear Wife,
 Dear / dear

Jack,
It's been a pleasure to know you this year & in the past. Best of luck always,

Wexley
an

My companion
